"Black Hand" Methods Of Milk Dealers Near Waukesha Causes Government Interference.

THREATENING LETTERS WERE SENT

Independent Dealers Told Not To Sell Any More Milk To Milwaukee In Defiance Of The Shippers' Association Ruling.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 28.—Post-office inspector Ralph Hurd has been asked to come to the rescue in running down clues to the source of threatening letters which are being received by "independent" milkmen, who are shipping their milk into the city in defiance of the rules of the Milwaukee Milk & Cream Shippers' association. An envelope postmarked Milwaukee, Jan. 25, 1:30 p. m., contained the following letter to a farmer and has been forwarded to Mr. Hurd: "If you send another can of milk to Milwaukee after today your plant will go up with dynamite in the next six months. Let this warn you, beware."

COMMITTS SUICIDE WITH A SHOT GUN

John Goetsche, Despondent Over Lack Of Work, Fires Both Barrels Into Breast. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 28.—Despondent over being out of work, John Goetsche, a carpenter, killed himself with a double-barreled shotgun at his home during the absence of the other members of the family. Mr. Goetsche put a nail in the door case, then stepping himself to the waist and sitting on the floor, placed the gun securely against his breast, gripping it with his arm and pressing the trigger against the nail in the casing, pulled the weapon toward him. Both barrels exploded with two terrific charges into his body close to the heart. The body was found by Mrs. Goetsche this morning upon her return from her son's home where she had been visiting. Mr. Goetsche was forty-eight years old and a member of the Governor's Guard Association of Spanish War Veterans.

DEATH CAUSED BY CRUEL TREATMENT

Officers of the Illinois State Reformatory Admit Having Tortured Hamlin. [BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Pontiac, Ill., Jan. 28.—According to admissions by officers of the Illinois State Reformatory before the board of managers last night, William Hamlin of Quincy, the inmate whose death has raised a storm of indignation, was subjected to the severest kind of brutality and torture. The disciplinary aids admitted the boy was strung by a wrist to the wall in the solitary cell for twenty hours at a time. The "cold water cure" was administered and after his backbone was broken in three places and the body paralyzed, he was allowed to lie on the floor twelve hours before a physician was called.

THAW CASE NEARING ITS CLOSE AT LAST

Jerome Will Depend Upon Argument Rather Than Testimony In Closing His Case. New York, Jan. 28.—The Thaw case had progressed today to within a few hours of its close. By the time the noon recess was taken the state had practically concluded its work in the rebuttal and the defense had only a few witnesses to call. In rebuttal, Jerome caused a distinct surprise by announcing he would call no expert witnesses to rebut the testimony of the alibi witnesses introduced by the defense. It was said he would rely upon the argument that a competent case of legal insanity had not been made out.

YOUNG MAN FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED

And Neighbor Is Injured By Horse When He Starts To Summon Relatives. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Manitowish, Wis., Jan. 27.—The face buried in the pillow, Julius Snyder, Jr., a Mexican youth, was found dead by members of the family who called him, death resulting from suffocation, probably following a dream. Snyder had resided at Manitowish since birth and made his home with his parents on a farm. While Edward Egan, a neighbor, was harnessing a horse to make a trip for relatives who were to be summoned, the animal kicked him in the face, fracturing a small bone above the right eye. The cork of the horse's shoe penetrated the eye and it is feared that the optic cannot be saved. Egan is in a critical condition from the shock of the accident.

STRENUOUS SESSION BEFORE PARLIAMENT

Important Session of the English Parliament Opens Tomorrow—Many Bills Up. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, Jan. 28.—Keen interest is manifested in the opening of Parliament tomorrow, as the session promises to be one of the most important since the Campbell-Bannerman administration came into power. If all the legislation promised for the coming session is forecasted in the speech from the throne, the members of the House of Commons will have a stupendous task before them, and the usual session of six months will have to be supplemented by an autumn session. Irish affairs are expected to have the foremost place on the agenda, though just what turn the proceedings will take in relation to this ever-present problem is uncertain. After Ireland, in point of public interest, will come an education bill and a drastic licensing bill.

MURDERER'S SECOND TRIAL COMMENCES

Ask Hale Charged With Criminally Assaulting and Murdering a Young Girl. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Mountville, Tenn., Jan. 28.—The case of Ask Hale, whose first trial attracted widespread attention, was called up for second trial today in the Sullivan county circuit court. Hale is charged with having criminally assaulted and murdered Lillie Davis, a pretty Bristol girl, one night last March. The tragedy occurred in East Hill cemetery. Hale admitted having been with the girl at the time, but denied that he had killed her, stating that she shot herself with a self-inflicted bullet. The coroner's inquest, however, developed the fact that the girl had probably been criminally assaulted and then murdered, and evidence of this character made the first trial, which was held last October, one of the most exciting that has ever taken place in this section.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New Orleans, La., Jan. 28.—The democratic state primary is being held throughout Louisiana today on nominations for all important state officers from governor down, for members of the state legislature and parish and precinct officers. The primary is equivalent to an election. The campaign for the governorship has been one of the most exciting in the history of the state, many bitter words being passed on the stump. The contest opened with three aspirants in the field, Jared V. Sanders, the present lieutenant governor; Theodore S. Wilkinson of New Orleans, and Gen. Leon J. Andremski of Baton Rouge. Gen. Andremski was removed from the contest by death, leaving Sanders and Wilkinson to fight it out.

TWO REAR ADMIRALS RETIRED SAME DAY

Two of Highest Ranking Officers in the Navy Are Retired on the Same Day. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—Seldom does it happen that two of the highest ranking officers of the navy are retired for age on the same day, but this was the case with Rear Admiral Robert M. Berry and Captain Harrison G. Colby, who were placed on the retired list today on account of having reached the age of 62 years. Captain Colby, by special act of the President and Senate, was retired with the rank of rear admiral, the grade to which he would have been promoted in the regular course of events by the retirement of Rear Admiral Berry. Had the dates for their retirements not fallen on the same day. Both officers have had long and active careers in the navy. Rear Admiral Berry comes from Kentucky and was graduated from the naval academy in 1866. Since that time he has served in all the various duties of a naval officer. During the war with Spain he commanded the United States steamship Castine. In recent years he has been in command of the navy yards at Charleston, Pensacola and Norfolk. Rear Admiral Colby is a native of New Bedford, Mass. There he learned to love the sea, his grandfather being the owner of a large whaling fleet that sailed from that port in the palm days of the whaling industry. He was appointed to the naval academy in 1862 and graduated in time to see some active service during the closing days of the civil war. In 1867, when only a captain, he was sent to Europe to bring the European squadron home, and dying his senior officer's flag from Bremer's flagship, the Olympia, he plotted the vessels successfully to the Caribbean, where the whole North Atlantic fleet was engaged in maneuvers. Later he took a special service squadron to Havana. Recently he has been in command of the New England recruiting station.

Rev. H. M. Tyndall and the Emeline York-Tyndal Hotel for Working Girls in New York City.

New York, Jan. 28.—The Emeline York-Tyndal hotel for working girls, the first and only experiment here in ecclesiastical sociology, was commenced by the Rev. H. M. Tyndall, "the clergyman in overalls," and his brother two and a half years ago and has just been completed. It is in no sense a charity, but it is based on cooperative theory; that is, the expense to the individual girl is reduced to next cost. The illustration shows the Rev. Mr. Tyndall in the upper corner over the hotel and the building on the right in the People's tabernacle, an interdenominational church of which Mr. Tyndall is pastor. His hotel is a six-story structure containing 55 rooms, at 52 East 192d street, in the Jewish colony. The building was constructed from plans drawn by the minister himself and the materials that entered into it were such as every one else had found unavailable. Practically all the skilled labor that went into it, the steam fitting, most of the carpentry and all else, was done by Mr. Tyndall and his brother. The building is made of concrete, for which the sand was obtained from contractors who were excavating in the neighborhood. The tilting for the floors originally was made to sell for 35 cents each, but was bought in by the minister and his brother for 4 and 5 cents each on account of their unfashionable sizes and patterns. The building was put up as funds for its erection came in and construction ceased when the contributions ceased. On this account and owing to the fact that only two skilled laborers the minister and his brother—were on the job, the hotel was two and a half years in building. Two donors contributed $10,000 in all, but those were the largest gifts. The rest of the money came, as one of the brothers said, "over the water-tail." Some of it came, too, from distant washrooms—as far away as Texas. In all $22,000 was raised, and the brothers, by economical and buying old material and doing all the skilled labor, managed to erect a $55,000 building. The hotel which has been named the Emeline York-Tyndal after the Rev. Mr. Tyndall's mother, aims to supply both board and room to its guests for from $2.50 to $3.75 a week. A restaurant will be run for the general public. No woman will be admitted as a lodger who is more than 35 years old, and no one earning more than $12 a week, unless under special circumstances.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Tuesday, Jan. 28, 1868.—Young Men's Association.—The Hon. James M. Burgess will deliver a lecture at the association rooms on Thursday evening of this week. Subject—The Finances of the Country. The public are cordially invited.

Caged.—The young man Carroll, of Happy Hollow, who was charged with shooting the bartender of John Roeth, a few weeks since, has eluded the officers until last night. The sheriff held him and suddenly appeared at a singing meeting where the young man was known to be. As the officers stepped inside the door all bobbed their heads up save one, to see who had come in, and he dodged down and hid under a desk. But it was of no use; the sheriff saw the game and brought it along and has it now in charge. If he did not shoot, as he claims, he will have a chance to prove it. If he did shoot, he stands in a fair way to be hanged.

Attempt to Prostitute an Official.—The last device that we have heard of lately is of two brothers under indictment for larceny, who stole a turkey and gave it to the district attorney.

This reminds us of a sister in the same family, who while in jail some time since, serving out a term as a penalty for theft, stole the sheets from the bed in which she slept, and made them up into underclothes.

We have asked the O. A. about it and he says "It is true." The turkey was presented and duly cooked and eaten. Innocently speaking of it to a neighbor of the two brothers, he was informed that the turkey was stolen from the neighbor. But it was then too late, the turkey was eaten and how could it be helped?

The sheriff has just heard for the first time of the history of the sheets. This sister and two brothers are evidently of a slightly demoralized family on the subject of the ownership of property. Perhaps they are a little insane on the subject.

The New York Sun states that the Secretary states that he does not expect this Congress will pay for Alaska, but that the next one will.

John H. Surratt was taken out of jail today for the purpose of taking his photograph. It is the first time he has been out since his trial. He is very much emaciated, and his friends say he has the consumption.

Janesville and Mrs. Florence Wendt of Beloit were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Westly Selmon Sunday. Miss Ella Pohl was a caller in Janesville Saturday.

WILLOWDALE. Willowdale, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Weston, who is sick at Mrs. Gallagher's, is doing nicely.

Mrs. James Mooney is visiting in Edgerton this week.

Otto Bork is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Bork.

AT THE PLAY HOUSES

JOSEPH AND WILLIAM JEFFERSON IN "THE RIVALS," HERE SOON

A well known dramatic critic on one of the prominent New York daily papers, writes as below of the performance of Joseph and William W. Jefferson in "The Rivals."

"Few plays have appeared here lately that have in any way rivaled 'The Rivals,' as presented last night by Joseph Jefferson and William W. Jefferson and a most evenly balanced and excellent cast. The story of the play is too well known to theatre-goers to require even a brief synopsis, and a criticism of it necessarily must be a commendation of the play and players collectively and individually. While no disparagement of the work of the two Jeffersons can justly be made, it would be no means fair to give them all the credit for the success of the play. All of the cast displayed ability to a marked degree and several of them evidenced their right to rank at least on a parity with the Jeffersons.

"The Rivals" comes to The Myers Theatre Friday, January 31.

Fond Memories of the Circus. If you have forgotten the joyous happiness of barefoot days and would briefly live over again the ardor and ecstasy that came with circus days, go and see the remarkable moving pictures of wild animals included in Lyman H. Howland's new program in Janesville at Myers Theatre on Wednesday, January 29. The series includes not only strange animals seldom, if ever, seen with a circus, but also remarkable portraits of those so familiar with a circus that without them it would not be a circus. The splendid view of elephants shown will revive fond memories of the long ago when perhaps you carried water for them. What a thirst they had!

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

The Wall Street Journal, in discussing the business outlook, says, that much depends on three contingencies: "First," the presidential campaign; second, the crops; and third, the attitude of the American people toward capital.

"The political situation is beginning to define itself with more clearness, and this is the most important development of the week. On the republican side the contest for the presidential nomination has narrowed down to the field against Taft. Secretary Taft is unquestionably in the lead with five or six other candidates against him, no one of whom has any large following outside of his own state.

"It has often happened in former political conventions that the leading candidate has failed of nomination by reason of a sudden combination between all the opposing candidates. It does not follow, however, that such will be the result this year.

"The present outlook favors the nomination of Secretary Taft by the republicans and of Mr. Bryan by the democrats. Mr. Bryan is a man of character and ability, and with a wonderful personal popularity, and it would be folly therefore to underrate his political strength.

"Nevertheless, it can scarcely be doubted that a contest between Taft and Bryan would result in the election of Taft. There is a promise that political uncertainty will be less of an adverse factor this year than has been feared.

"The nomination and election of Taft would be a triumph for the progressive element in the republican party, while the defeat of Bryan would be a defeat of radicalism. There are no signs that the country is prepared to undo what has been done in relation to business reform during the past five or six years, but there are many signs of returning sanity as regards the rights of property and individual liberty.

"One of those signs is to be found in the recent court decisions, which have been pointedly against all compulsory legislation. This is especially noticeable in the case of the decision overturning the Pennsylvania 2-cent fare bill.

"Another sign is to be found in the lessened quantity of muck rake literature circulated throughout the country. The beginning of a shift to break up the Harriman combination was generally expected.

"It is gratifying to know that a return of sanity is noticeable, and that the era of criticism is being succeeded by an era of conservative thinking.

"While the American people are impulsive they also possess a disposition to be fair, and they are beginning to realize that too much agitation has resulted in trial and conviction in the court of public opinion, where there was really no cause for action.

"Hasty legislation in New York was vetoed by the governor, and set aside by the courts in Pennsylvania. In both cases the action of the law-makers was regarded as confiscatory.

"When the new laws of many other states are tested, it will be found that they are invalid, for the same reason. Much harm has been done, for which the nation is now paying the penalty, but many of these laws can be corrected, and when this is done, the country may look for the return of prosperity.

READY TO DO BUSINESS

The banks all over the country are loaded with money, and more accumulating every day. The people are ready to do business, and yet a great army of men are idle, and many industries are crippled.

Everybody is asking the question, "Why don't we resume and go to work?" and the answer is an unsatisfactory echo. Various causes are suggested, for present conditions, among them the national campaign, with all the uncertainties as to the policy of a new administration.

The most plausible explanation of our trouble, however, is found in the fact that our transportation and industrial enterprises have been regulated to a point which has resulted in demoralization.

Prosecution has followed prosecution. Now and stringent laws have followed each other in rapid succession, until the spirit of regulation possesses us like a mania, and we spend our time in watching for a new heat to pop up, so that it may be bottled.

It was to be hoped that when the money panic subsided, the atmosphere would be clarified, and it has to some extent, for muck-raking is no longer popular, but the administration continues to be radical and reform leaders continue to shout reform.

Under these conditions, capital has become weary of the struggle, and is no longer aggressive. Merchants are buying from hand to mouth, factories running on short time with light equipment, railroads have abandoned constructive work and cut down operating forces to the minimum, and a general disposition prevails to wait until the fight is over.

In the meantime the court will be asked to pass on many laws which seem confiscatory, and business will continue to wait until several clouds are removed.

The state seems to be shy 27 life insurance companies, in spite of Secretary Frear's explanation, and taxes continue to climb in proportion, but we have the satisfaction of knowing why the state lost the business, and that helps some.

Regulation of the saloon, in the cities, with good laws impartially enforced, is better by far than an attempt at prohibition, which does not prohibit. Nothing but public sentiment enforces moral law, and prohibition by a bare majority means failure.

The second Thaw trial has failed to create a sensation, and people generally will be satisfied with an instantly verdict, or any other that means punishment.

It may be necessary to drop politics at the spring election, and vote for law and order candidates, irrespective of party. The issue of the campaign promises to be a law and order issue.

The primary law of Illinois seems to have been lost in the investigation of charges against the state's penitentiary and charitable institutions.

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Miller left yesterday for San Antonio, Texas, with a party of eleven from North Fond du Lac.

Bryan does not take kindly to the invitation to retire. He is not of a retiring disposition.

Taft against the field seems to be the line-up at this stage of the game.

What has become of the senatorial boom of S. A. Cook of Kenosha?

MAY TELL OF BIG FRAUDS

ARCHITECT HUSTON IS GRANTED A SEPARATE TRIAL.

Report That One Defendant in Pennsylvania Graft Case Will Turn State's Evidence.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 28.—The feature of the first day of the trial of the capital prosecutions, which began in the Dauphin county court before President Judge Kunkel Monday morning, was the agreement of the commonwealth to a separate trial for Architect Joseph H. Huston. The commonwealth objected to the motions of Huston's four co-defendants for separate trials, which motions were overruled by the court.

The action of the commonwealth in agreeing to a separate trial for Huston has given rise to a rumor that the architect will turn state's evidence and tell all he knows of the alleged "frauds in the furnishing of the new capital."

It was reported Monday night that the commonwealth had issued a subpoena for Huston and that he will be one of its most important witnesses. This rumor could not be confirmed, the attorneys on both sides declining to discuss it.

Huston is under indictment on 30 charges of conspiracy involving $757,495.27. He is also under indictment on two charges of false pretense involving $13,500. He designed the capital and the furnishings, his commissions on which aggregated $416,621.91.

We Know How

Please learn what a difference there is in baked beans, and what makes it

First the beans. We pay $2.10 per bushel for ours, to get the choicest Michigan beans. Some sell for 30 cents. We get only the whitest, the plumpest, the fullest-grown. Then the tomato sauce. We could buy sauce ready made for exactly one-fifth what ours costs to make. But we use only vine-ripened tomatoes.

We have spent 47 years in learning how best to prepare these beans

We cook in live steam, so the beans are not browned, not broken. They are baked until mealy, yet they are nutty. Our ovens are heated to 245 degrees, so the fibre is broken down, and the beans are digestible. The beans, the tomato sauce and the pork are all baked together. Thus we get our delicious blend.

Van Camp's pork and beans baked with tomato sauce

Compare them with home-cooked beans. Home beans are heavy and hard to digest, because you lack the facilities to apply the needed heat. Some are baked to a crisp; some are less than half-baked. And if you ever compare Van Camp's with other brands you will see why we advertise.

Beans are 84 per cent nutriment. They are Nature's choicest food

Beans form one of the cheapest foods, compared with their food value. And one of the very best.

Then why not serve the best beans, so that your people will want them more frequently?

And why not carry a dozen cans in the house? Then you have a hearty, delicious meal always ready.

Articles of Agreement for New Telephone Company in Brodhead Are Drawn Up.

Brodhead, Jan. 27.—Rev. G. N. Foster of the M. E. church exchanged pulpits with Rev. Black of Albany yesterday morning and evening. Rev. Black gave a lecture in the evening, illustrated with a hundred views thrown on canvas by a stereopticon. It was very interesting.

C. A. Anderson spent Sunday in Milwaukee.

Week Brown has returned from his visit to El Paso, Texas, and Denver, Colo.

Articles of agreement have been drawn up for the organization of a farmers' telephone company. About $5,000 in stock has already been subscribed and it is expected that articles of incorporation will soon be filed with the secretary of state. The movement seems to meet the approval of the majority of farmers in the community. It is said that the Brodhead Telephone company now wishes to sell its plant, the consideration asking $20,000. It is hardly probable, however, that the new company will buy as they believe they can build an adequate plant much cheaper.

The outlook for movement in tobacco at present is rather meagre. Although there have been a number of "riders" about there have as yet been no sales reported. The prevailing opinion seems to be that tobacco will be bought until it is put into the hands. There when the orders come to buy the purchaser can do so intelligently. It is claimed by those who ought to know that good tobacco will bring a fairly good price.

There were quite a number from Orfordville here on Friday evening to attend the Dumbler concert.

The Y. M. C. The orchestra music, under the leadership of Miss Crandall, was very fine, the solo and duet playing by Misses Sorell and Haines delighted, and the readings by Miss Spooner highly satisfactory.

Wm. Vadder of D Ingersoll Avenue, Schenectady, Tells How Father John's Medicine Cured His Lung and Built Up His Strength.

"Last fall, I had a severe attack of pneumonia and was confined to the house for four months. At the end of that time I was still suffering from a hard, hacking cough, from which the doctors could give no relief. I tried everything I could think of or hear of but with no beneficial result. In this condition I returned to work. One day a shopmate who noticed how I was suffering, advised me to try a bottle of Father John's Medicine. I did so and began to get relief at once. I was soon cured of the cough and able once more to take a good night's rest, but fearing that the cough might return, I continued taking the medicine until I had used twelve bottles. When I began to take the medicine I was in a very weak condition, but I gained in strength rapidly and am now as strong as ever. I believe my cure was due entirely to Father John's Medicine and I heartily recommend it to all who are similarly afflicted." (Signed) William Vadder, 9 Ingersoll Avenue, Schenectady, N. Y.

INVEST YOUR MONEY IN FARM LAND

The Pacific Coast extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway opens to the settler thousands of acres of good farming land in Butte County, South Dakota, and in Adams, Hettinger and Bowman Counties, North Dakota.

The soil is a dark loam, with a clay sub-soil; good water is found at a depth of from twenty to fifty feet; rainfall is amply sufficient to raise the crops. The whole country is underlaid with lignite coal that outcrops along the streams, and in most cases can be had for the digging. The climate is healthful, the air dry and invigorating, and the percentage of days of sunshine high. Outdoor work can be done almost every day in the year. Regular mail service has been established, the roads are good, and telephone lines traverse the country. The decided land there sells for from $10 to $18 per acre. There were many instances in the past year where the crop equaled in value the cost of the land.

In Butte County, South Dakota, there is considerable government land open for homestead entry. Government land offices are maintained at Lemmon, Hettinger and Bowman, where filings and final proofs may be made. All of these towns are on the new line of the

Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway

In Montana, the new railroad traverses good farming land. It has been demonstrated that big crops of grain may be raised there. Along the Yellowstone and Musselshell rivers the yields of alfalfa, sugar beets and grain last year were remarkable. In the Judith Basin, near Lewistown, Montana, is one of the most remarkable sections to be found along the new line. Under natural rainfall the famous bench lands produced last year an average of 35 bushels of hard wheat to the acre. The basin contains about 2,000 square miles and is sparsely settled. Some government land still remains open for settlement. Government land offices are maintained at Lewistown and Terry, Montana.

The Big Bend Country of Washington presents splendid opportunities in farming and fruit raising. Eight new towns along this new line have recently been opened in Idaho and Washington.

She waited, head bent, then:

"I don't know, Mr. Plank," very low, "did your interest in his fortunes ever concern him?"

"Yes, once."

He looked at her sternly, his jaw squaring until his heavy under lip projected. "Within my definition of friendship, is he your friend?"

"You mean he?"

"No; I mean you. I can answer for him. How is it with you? Do you return what he gives—if there is really friendship between you, or do you take what he offers, offering nothing in return?"

She had turned rather white under the direct impact of the questions. The jarring repetition of his voice it self was like the dull echo of distant blows. Yet it never occurred to her to resent it nor his attitude nor his self-assumed privilege. She did not care. She no longer cared what he said to her or thought about her, nor did she care that her arm had fallen at last. It was not what he was saying, but what her own heart repeated so heavily that drove the color from her face. Not he, but she herself had become the pitiless attorney for the prosecution; not his voice, but the clamorous conscience within her demanded by what right she used the name of friendship to characterize the intimate relations between her and the man to whom she had denied herself.

Then a bitter impatience swept her and a dawning fear, too, for she had set her foot on the fallen mask, and the impulse rendered her reckless.

"Why don't you speak?" she said. "Yes, I have a right to know. I care for him as much as you do. Why don't you answer me? I tell you I care for him."

"Do you?" he said in a dull voice. "Then help me out, if you can, for I don't know what to do, and if I did I haven't the authority of friendship as my warrant. He is in New York. He did go to the country, and at the home the servants suppose he is still away, but he isn't. He is here alone and sick—sick of his old sickness. I saw him, and—Plank rested his head on his hand, dropping his eyes—and he didn't know me. I—I do not think I will remember that he met me or that I spoke. And I could do nothing, absolutely nothing. And I don't know where he is. He will go home after awhile. I call every day to see—see what can be done, but if he were there I would not know what to do. When he does go home I won't know what to say, what to try to do. And that is an answer to your question, Miss Landre. I give it because you say you care for him as I do. Will you advise me what to do, you, who are more entitled than I am to know the truth, because he has given you the friendship which he has as yet not accorded to me?"

But Sylvia, dry eyed, dry lip, could find no voice to answer, and after a little while they rose and moved through the fragrant gloom toward the sparkling lights beyond.

Her voice came back as they entered the brilliant room. "I should like to find Grace Ferrall," she said very distinctly. "Please keep the others off, Mr. Plank."

Ferrall had missed his dance with her, but she scarcely heard his eager complaints. Quicker, colder, inquiring, confronted them was passed almost without recognition and left behind him a look of utter despair.

Then Ferrall came, and hearing his voice, she raised her colorless face.

"Will you take me home with you, Plank, when you take Grace?" she asked.

"Of course, I don't know where Grace is. Are you in a hurry to go? It's only 4 o'clock."

They were at the entrance to the supper room. Plank drew up a chair for her, and she sank down, dropping her elbows on the small table and resting her face between her fingers.

"Pegged out, Sylvia?" exclaimed Ferrall incredulously. "You? What's the younger set coming to?" and he motioned a servant to fill her glass. But she pushed it aside, with a shiver, and gave Plank a strange look, which he scarcely understood at the moment.

"More caprice. All sorts of 'em on the prodigal," muttered Ferrall, looking down at her from where he stood beside Plank. "O tempora! O Sylvia! Plank, would you mind hunting up my wife? I'll stay and see that this infant doesn't fall asleep."

But Sylvia shook her head, saying: "Please go, Plank. I'm a little tired, that's all. When Grace is ready I'll leave with her." And at her gesture Plank went himself, while Ferrall, shrugging his square shoulders, sauntered off in quest of his wife, stopping a moment at a neighboring table to speak to Agatha Calhoun, who sat there with Captain Voucher, the collar of superb diamonds and aquamarines on her slender throat a pale blaze of splendor.

Plank was hungry, and he said so in his excited fashion. Sylvia nodded and exchanged a smile with Agatha, who turned at the sound of Plank's voice. For awhile, as he ate and drank largely, she made the effort to keep up a desultory conversation, particularly when anybody to whom she owed an explanation hovered dully in sight on the horizon. But Plank's appetite was in proportion to the generous lines on which nature had fashioned him, and she paid less and less attention to conversation and a trifle more to the beauty of Agatha's jewels, until the silence at the small table in the corner remained unbroken except by the faint tinkle of silver and crystal and the bubbling hiss of a glass refilled.

Major Belvedere, his white, fluffy, chop whiskers brushed rabbit fashion, peeped in at the door, started to tiptoe out again, caught sight of them and came, trotting back, bending over the table, his moist eyes twinkling with suppressed mirth; then, bestowing a sprightly glance on Plank, which said very plainly, "I'm up to one of my irresponsible jokes again," he held up a smooth, white and overmanicured forefinger.

"I was in Tiffany's yesterday," he said, "and I saw a young man in there who didn't see me, and I peeped over his shoulder, and what do you think he was doing?"

She lifted her eyes a little wearily. "I don't know," she said. "I do," he chuckled. "He was choosing a collar of blue diamonds and aquamarines—to be—probably to wear himself—tegal! Or perhaps he was going to be married—he-he—he—next winter—ahem—next November—ha-ha! I don't know, I'm sure, what he meant to do with that collar. I only—"

Something in Sylvia's eyes stopped him, and, following her direction, he turned around to find Quarrier standing at his elbow, icy and expressionless.

"Oh," said the aged foster, a little disconcerted, "I'm caught talking out in church, I see! It was only a harmless little fun, Howard."

"Do you mean you saw me?" asked Quarrier, pale as a sheet. "You are in error, I have not been in Tiffany's in months."

Belvedere, crestfallen under the white menace of Quarrier's face, nodded and essayed a chuckle without success.

Sylvia, at first listless and uninterested, looked inquiringly from the major to Quarrier, surprised at the suppressed feeling exhibited over so trivial a gaffe. If Quarrier had chosen a collar like Agatha's for her, what of it? But as he had not, on his own statement, what did it matter? Why should he look that way at the foolish major, to whose gossamer gossip he was accustomed and whose inability to refrain from prying was notorious enough.

Turning absently, she caught a glimpse of Plank's shocked and altered face. It relaxed instantly into the usual inert expression, and a queer, uncomfortable perplexity began to invade her. What had happened to stir up these three men? Of what importance was an indiscretion of an old gentleman whose fatuous vanity and consequent blunders everybody was familiar with? And after all, Howard had not bought anything at Tiffany's. He said so himself. But it was evident that Agatha had chanced on the collar that Belvedere thought he saw somebody else examining.

He turned and looked at the dead white neck of the girl. The collar was wonderful—a miracle of pale fire. And Sylvia, musing, let her thoughts run on, dreamy eyes brooding. She was glad that Agatha's means permitted her now to have such things. It had been understood for some years that the Calhoun fortune was in rather an alarming condition. Howard had been lately to do a favor or two for old Peter Calhoun. She had heard the major bragging about it. Evidently Mr. Calhoun must have improved the chance if he was able to present such gems to his daughter. And now somebody would marry her. Perhaps Captain Voucher, perhaps even Belvedere, perhaps, as rumor had it now and then, Plank might venture into the arena. Poor Plank! More of a man than people understood. She understood. She—

And her thoughts swung back like the returning tide to Howard, and her heart began heavily again, and the slightly fatal sensation returned. She passed her ungloved, unsteady fingers across her eyelids and forehead, looking up and around. The major and Howard had disappeared. Plank, beside her, sat staring stupidly into his empty wineglass.

"Isn't Mrs. Ferrall coming?" she said wearily.

Plank gathered his embersome bulk and stood up, trying to see through the entrance into the ballroom. After a moment he said: "They're in there, talking to Marion. It's a good chance to make our adieux."

As they passed out of the supper room Sylvia paused behind Agatha's chair and bent over her. "The collar is beautiful," she said, "and so are you, Agatha." And, with a little impulsive excess for the jewels, she passed on, unconscious of the delicate touch that spread from Agatha's shoulder down to her hair. And Agatha, turning, encountered only the stupid gaze of Plank, moving ponderously past on Sylvia's heels.

"If you'll find Lella, I'm ready at any time," she said earnestly and resumed her tête-à-tête with Voucher, who had lately been annoyed at the interruption.

Ferrall and his wife and Sylvia were making their adieux to Marion and her mother when Plank came up, and he, too, took that opportunity.

Later Sylvia, passing through the grand hall, shrouded in silk and ermine, turned to offer him her hand, saying in a low voice: "I am at home to you, do you understand? Always," she added nervously. He looked after her, with an unconscious sigh, unaware that anything in himself had claimed her respect.

HIGHEST PRAISE.

Some Janesville Citizens Grow Enthusiastic on the Subject.

The praise of the public is the praise of the public. Nothing in modern times has received the praise accorded "The Little Conqueror."

Of some kinds of praise we are skeptical. We doubt the praise of strangers. The highest praise for Janesville public is hearty expression from Janesville people.

Don't's Kidney Pills are endorsed in Janesville. No better proof of merit can be had. Here's a case of it. We have plenty more like it.

Mrs. J. P. Jones, of 157 Western Ave., Janesville, Wis., says: "I was not free from attacks of backache for a single day during several years past. I used so many remedies without getting any relief that I came to the conclusion that nothing would help me and stopped trying. I went about all bent over, could not straighten up at all and had a dull pain across the loins and a feeling of weakness that made it hard for me even to rise from a chair. At night I would awaken with the feeling that a great weight was breaking my back, and anyone who has suffered from kidney trouble will know what torture I endured. Finally I saw Don's Kidney Pills advertised and wondered if there was really any use of trying another remedy, but seeing them recommended by people in Janesville I procured a box at the People's Drug Co. and began using them. Gradually I regained strength and the pains andaches finally disappeared. Since I have discontinued their use I have not had an attack of backache nor any symptoms of kidney trouble, and I believe Don's Kidney Pills worthy of all the praise that I can give them."
